The Pitch

Introduction

A group of players is sitting around a round table, each playing their own game of solitaire. Whenever a player uncovers an ace, or any other lowest possible card in a suit, the card is removed from their game and immediately used in combat. Each suit does something else.

Gameplay

In a standard Solitaire game, there are four slots where you stack your cards from ace up to a king. In a game of Solitaire: Battle Royale, instead of placing your cards here, you perform their ability. You can use a spades card to deal a lot of damage to a single enemy, clubs deal small damage to all enemies, diamonds are equipped as a shield and hearts restore a small amount of health. Your goal is to eliminate all other players and be the last person standing.

Background

Solitaire: Battle Royale is partially inspired by Jonny RaZeR's youtube video "Halo... But With Solitaire". In the video, Jonny presents an idea for a game, which is a competitive shooter, but you can gain buffs by gaining points in a solitaire minigame. I played around with the idea a little bit, tried to bring the two aspects of it closer together, and ended up with the current pitch.

Setting

The setting of the game is really simple. The environment consists of a round table, presumably located in a casino or a pub. There is no story in this game. However, in the future, playable characters with custom backstories might be added.

Features

1. Simple mechanics
2. Fun and addictive
3. BATTLE PASS!!!
4. Based on a classic game we all know and love

Genre

It's solitaire but with combat, so the genre is combat card game, simple as that.

Platform

The game will initially release for Windows and Linux. Later it will be available for all platforms, with crossplay.

Style

(a) A game of solitaire battle royale.

(b) Zoom onto your cards to play more easily.

(c) Bottom player is attacking at the top player.
